

COMP405: Platform Based Application Development
Midterm 1
Due Date: April 11, 2016

In this exercise you will create the index page for an intranet web site for a university in the Ivory Coast.

International University of Grand-Bassam is an international university which is an extension of Georgia State University, University of Alabama and University of Houston. I have been helping this university with their IT infrastructure and they need an intranet to serve the internal needs of the university. This site has been started by a group of students but it is poorly designed.

The url for the site is <http://internal.iugb.edu.ci>. You will use this site as the reference point and design a similar index page based on RWD. Also to help you identify the theme and colors of the university, the main university web site can be found at <http://iugb.edu.ci> or <http://iugb.org>

Below are some issues to note:

1. The logo and the images for the carousel are all located in a folder named MIDTERM1 IMAGES on the course website.
2. The menu should be the same or similar to the one on the site, however, it must be based on RWD.
3. The calendar is a google calendar, and since you don't have the log in access to create the calendar, just put a dummy google calendar in its place.
4. All the links must point to "Under Construction" dummy pages.

Save your html and any CSS files you will create as midterm1 in the midterm folder.
